

Conferences

The Society holds regular conferences where the meteorological community can present their latest work and science. We hold a range of conference throughout the year, catering for the professional, amateur and student community's.

The annual conference is for the whole meteorological community and is held in various places throughout the UK. The aim is to bring together academics, practitioners and industry to exchange knowledge and ideas in science and allowing valuable networking opportunities for delegates. During this conference, we also invite keynote speakers from around the world and these are scientists who are renowned in their fields.

Since 2003 we have held a conference for our student and early career scientist community and this is held every year, again in various venues throughout the UK.

The final conference held by the Society is for the Amateur community. This event is for people who love weather, are enthusiastic about Meteorology and want to network with like-minded individuals.

The conferences are a mixture of science and social activity and are extremely popular and well-attended. There are several sessions of talks and sometimes workshops and other meetings. There is also an opportunity to network with colleagues and new acquaintances. Social events often include dinners, drinks receptions and other tours or quizzes.

2018 Conference Season

'Atmospheric Science Conference: Weather, Climate, and Air Quality ^[1]' is a joint conference with NCAS. This conference will be held on the 3rd and 4th July at the University of York, UK

'Evolution of Science: Past, Present and Future ^[2]' is a conference for Students and Early Career Scientists. This conference will be held on the 5th and 6th July 2018 at the University of York, UK

2017 Conference Season

The 'Impact of Science' Conference 2017 for Students & Early Career Scientists [3] took place on the 11th and 12th July 2017 at the Met Office, Exeter, UK.

RMetS Annual Conference 'Weather and Climate Impacts: From research and services to application and policy [4]' took place on the 13th and 14th July 2017 at The University of Exeter, UK.

WeatherLive [5] will be held on Saturday 4th November 2017 at Central Hall Westminster, London.

2016 Conference Season

The RMetS Student Conference 2016 [6] took place at the University of Manchester on the 4th to 6th July 2016

The RMetS NCAS Conference 2016 [7] took place at the University of Manchester on the 6th to 8th July 2016,

RMetS Amateur Meteorologists' Conference 2016 [8] took place at the University of Reading on the 10th to 11th September 2016.

Speaker Guidelines

For advice and tips on presenting at an RMetS Conference, please look at our dedicated page [9] for more information.

Source URL: <http://test-accsys.rmets.org/events/conferences>

Links

[1] <https://www.atmosphericsscienceconference.uk/>

[2] <https://www.rmets.org/evolutionofscience18>

[3] <https://www.rmets.org/impactofscience>

[4] <https://www.rmets.org/annual2017>

[5] <https://www.rmets.org/events/conferences/weatherlive>

[6] <https://www.rmets.org/student2016>

[7] <https://www.rmets.org/ncascon2016>

[8] <https://www.rmets.org/amateur2016>

[9] <https://www.rmets.org/speaker-guidelines>